

Atomic Piseag take a break from recording to pose for Lorn Life. t47ato09

ATOMIC PÌSEAG e TO RECORDÒ THE

MEMBERS of Argyll ladies Gaelic choir, Atomic Piseag, may have fooled people into thinking they are living quietly but the reality is quite the opposite.

The Piseagan have been busy making their first album, which will be ready in the New Year, and spent a weekend at Watercolour Studio in Ardgour recording their tracks.

Husband and wife team sound engineer Nick Turner and producer Mary Ann Kennedy made sure the fun-loving Piseagan got their work done.

The album, which has a working title of Piseag gu leòr, will have eight choir tracks as well as solos and duets from choir members.

The choir, known as the Argyll Ladies' Centennial Gaelic Choir on formal excursions, were formed in 2003 for the Royal National Mod in Oban, the centenary Mod.

Soloist Audrey Paterson of Tainuilt, t47ato01

Soloist Janet MacDonald of Tobermory. t47ato07