

Gauntlet goes down for Lorn Drama Festival

THE gauntlet has been thrown down for Oban

The only thing missing from the Lorn Drama Festival, is the town of Oban.

These are just some of the teams that competed in the event, held in March at the Corran Halls in Oban.

Chairman for the final evening of the festival Andrew McIntyre thanked everyone involved in such a successful week and he conveyed the feelings of most involved with the festival when he said: 'I have said this before and I will say it again; where is the Oban team?'

'It is a shame that there has been no team from the town the event is held in for so many years.'

So come on Oban, what are you waiting for.

Tony Layton's Remembrance Day was the play chosen by Dalmally and Lochawe Drama Club as its entry into this year's Lorn Drama Festival. The all-female cast were, back, left to right: Kate Craig, Linda Brown, Mary Johnston and Anne Broughton and June Sutherland, seated front. Averil Watson was stage manager and the only chap in on the act was producer Ian Craig.

The smell of the grease paint and the roar of the crowd, for June Sutherland who took the role of Ruth in Remembrance Day, the Dalmally and Lochawe Drama Club entry in the Lorn Drama Festival.
